

RADICAL TERROR

LONDON, April 30.—"This is one of the most horrible things that has ever been done," Viscount Cecil declared in the house of lords in condemning the destruction of Basque towns by Spanish insurgents in the civil war. He bitterly attacked the destructive air raid on Guernica, where Basques charged fleeing civilians were mowed down by aerial machine gunners.

The Earl of Plymouth assured the house the government would continue to examine the position from every angle to see whether further steps were possible to prevent such happenings.

"If there is anything they think they can usefully do, they will certainly do it," Lord Plymouth said.

Lord Cecil asked if the government was responsible for the raids. He said if German aviators were responsible Germany should recall them. Lord Plymouth was unable to say who actually ordered the attack or what machines were used in it.

Lord Cecil urged the government to make strong protest. He wanted the matter raised in the League of Nations council.

Lord Plymouth said the government did not think that dealing with the matter under the covenant of the League was the best way of preventing a recurrence of such events.

BRITISH VESSEL IS ADED

BILBAO, Spain, April 30.—Spanish government airplanes, going to the aid of a British freighter, today bombed and sank the 15,432-ton insurgent battleship Espana off Santander in one of the most spectacular sea engagements of the civil war.

It was believed to have been the first sinking of a battleship by planes in actual warfare.

The aircraft went into action after the freighter, the 1,000-ton Borea, had been fired on as the result of an attack from the Espana and the insurgent battleship.

Blasted by a hail of powerful bombs in a stern, the battleship—considered by the Spanish as one of the most powerful of the insurgent fleet—began sinking four miles off Cape Navar, about immediately after the aircraft launched their raid.

For three-quarters of an hour the heavy watercraft kept higher and higher, the first sinking of a battleship by planes in actual warfare.

She disappeared from view at 3:45 a.m., leaving the Borea and her 85-man crew milling around in the water and calling for aid.

The Velasco succeeded in getting the surviving officers of the Espana aboard but left crew members in the water, who were later picked up from Santander.

After the attack, the British freighter, which is owned by W. Shaw, Ltd., with Glasgow as its home port, got off to a safe distance. It was expected to be captured by the Velasco but was subjected to the insurgent "blockade."

The Velasco attacked the Borea in an attempt to capture it. The Velasco fired 12 rounds but failed to score a hit.

Princess Elizabeth

"REGENCY" introduces a "Princess... A new royal pattern that bears the name of the Empire's Daughter—Princess Elizabeth."

This new design is symbolic—the Oak Leaves represent England's sturdiness—the Tudor Rose the beauty of England's Royal Princess—and the old Georgian Shell touch completes this charming pattern!

All the noteworthy qualities of Regency Plate are embodied in this new pattern—the excellence of the workmanship, heavy plating, and hand burnishing.

National councilman, Mr. Gardiner, said agricultural prices in the last year have increased even more swiftly than rising prices of other products.

The federal minister was in touch with Premier Aberhart Friday morning and arranged a conference here to deal with drought rehabilitation. Representatives of the three prairie provinces will meet Mr. Gardiner in Regina next Thursday to discuss relief measures. In this regard Mr. Gardiner said that it was not proposed to move families from drought zones to other sections of the country. Instead the government will concentrate on "conservation of the land."

While not making any public speeches in Edmonton this trip he will break a long meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs in Winnipeg, May 11.

ENVOY NOT NAMED

The agricultural products commissioner, who will go to London to probe Canadian foreign agricultural markets, has not been selected yet, Mr. Gardiner said. The department, however, has completed intensive reorganization of its marketing division. A special inspector from this division is now studying freight rates, seeking a lower rate for shipment of foods particularly.

Mr. Gardiner will leave for Calgary Saturday night and will go directly east from Winnipeg after he makes his speech.

four British food carriers in Bilbao harbor.

Fifteen bombing planes, accompanied by six pursuit ships, staged the 15-minute onslaught on the harbor and Galdacano to the east. Three houses were destroyed in Galdacano and the aerial machine gunners were reported to have turned their weapons on the fleeing inhabitants.

Following morning women and children wept before the ruins of their homes while the men defending the tightly bottled city vowed to resist Gen. Emilio Mola's invasion to the death.

Meanwhile, other insurgent forces continued their encircling movement through the coastal sector north of Durango where they took the town and "four trucks protected the orderly retreat."

Both sides of the Durango road were being ferried heavily, adding to the defense already represented by the string of steel and concrete entrenchments, the "Magnet line"—about Bilbao itself.

AIR TRAGEDY TERRIBLE SAYS LORD CECIL

City of Guernica off the map last Monday.

The slaughter began at 4:30 p.m.—the exact hour at which Gen. Francisco Franco's agents had begun their merciless attack on Guernica four days ago.

TO LAST HAMLET

By the time the readers had flown off the terrified population was convinced Franco's enemies were determined to annihilate the entire Basque country, down to the last man and the last house.

At 4:28 p.m. 24 bombers and six paravanes flew in the heaviest attack yet appeared over Guernica, four miles southeast of Bilbao, and dropped more than 300 bombs.

The smaller craft were down to within 100 feet of the ground and methodically sprayed machine gun fire into fleeing clusters of troops, strikers, men, women and children, leaving a trail of death toward the open fields.

HORROR FOLLOWED

In the horror and confusion which followed it was impossible to obtain anything like an accurate count on casualties, which must have been high. At least 1000 were reported to have been killed. Numerous unexploded incendiary bombs were scattered about the German manufacture—Reinhardt, 1936.

According to all authoritative accounts of the Guernica massacre, the raid on Guernica was in every way analogous to the planes first in similar formations and adopted the same tactics, first driving the civilians into the open with bombs and then systematically mowing them down with machine-gun fire.

Act Of Utter Barbarism

Declares Survivor Priest

PASIS, April 30.—Confirmation of the "Guernica Massacre" was offered today by Rev. Alberto Onandia, Basque-born canon of Valladolid cathedral who arrived here from the raze Basque "holy city" after having barely escaped death by a Spanish incendiary plane's machine gun.

Maria Gellia, a woman who lived through the Guernica attack, estimated at Bilbao that 4,000 persons were killed or wounded.

"As a Catholic priest," the canon declared, "it is my duty to say that the greatest possible outrage against religion will be realized if Guernica is destroyed. It is a day that is celebrated in Guernica's Santa Maria church, saved from flames by the explosion of Bilbao's planes, a Te Deum to military glory." Gen. Francisco Franco and General Emilio Mola, who represents the utter barbarism.

RAID BEGINS

Father Onandia gave the following eyewitness account of the Guernica slaughter:

"I arrived in Guernica Monday at 4:30 p.m. Hardly had I alighted from my automobile when the air raid began.

The first bomb ripped open the three-story house. As the market day, the populations of surrounding villages were fleeing in terror-stricken, the people fled toward the open country.

"A pursuit plane appeared first followed then by three others, then by 15 trimotors in two groups of six and seven. After their work of destruction the planes flew off into the distance.

OVER THREE HOURS

"They were succeeded by identical formations, which continued their work of extermination with the same fury. The bombardment lasted from 4:30 to 7:45 p.m.

"During all this time not so much as five minutes elapsed without the appearance of planes. At any time, the method of attack was always the same—first machine guns, then incendiary bombs, and finally incendiary bombs.

"At the end of the afternoon Guernica lay longer in flames than from a distance of a third of a mile, due to the intense smoke from the bombardment and the fire.

PLANES FLY LOW

"The planes descended to less than 100 feet over my automobile and shot a spray of machine gun fire. I was able to find shelter in a grove of oak and then succeeded in making my way to Baschuelo.

"At seven p.m. Guernica was ablaze. Planes arriving later from Bilbao worked feverishly to save such buildings as were not entirely burned. The glow from the flames could be seen at Legutio, 14 miles distant."

Britain, France To Conduct Guernica Quiz

PASIS, April 30.—Great Britain and France have decided to conduct an investigation into the devastating bombing and machine-gunning of Guernica. Sacred City of the Basques. French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos told the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee today that Britain and France also agreed that measures must be taken to ensure that thousands of non-combatants from Bilbao, besieged Basque capital, Delbos said.

No Changes Made In Churchill's Plans

OTTAWA, April 30.—No change in part due to anticipated this season at Churchill, it was announced here today by R. O. Campbell, chairman of the national legislature.

Two years ago I visited your city and was graciously admitted by the Canadian Club to the University into the fellowship. I welcome this opportunity of speaking to you now as an honorary alumnus of the University of Alberta.

Modern history has been defined, he said, as the evolution of the unexpected, but the stability and renewal of the British Empire will endure. Dr. Cody continued.

Now, J. G. Brown, Liberal member of the House of Commons, spoke of agriculture, was an honored guest at the meeting.

Next: Bill Terry.

FARMERS FEEL SEED PINCH AT PEACE RIVER

PEACE RIVER, April 30.—So serious is the question of seed grain for many farmers that the Peace River Board of Trade found it necessary to write both the provincial and Federal heads of the Department of Agriculture in an effort to alleviate the situation. The seed business was when about 60 farmers from the surrounding district waited upon Mr. Michael who served from the purpose of securing applications.

Wednesday and Thursday of this week many farmers that they were unable to secure their seed.

Heavy snow storm of September 15th last year was the main reason that the local seed farmers were unable to grow their own seed.

Many of those applying have upwards of 100 acres to seed and one farmer has already offered a quarter section of land in this area. $2 an acre in order that he can buy seed for his seed 150 acres.

The Board of Trade entertained Inspector Radcliffe in a farewell dinner at the Hotel of this Thursday afternoon. The popular inspector left for his home in Vancouver from the end of September to October for his home in Vancouver, at which point he has been transferred.

Gravelling Peace River Road Urged

Residents of the northern portion of the province would welcome the completion and gravelling of the main Peace River highway as they are now usually obliged to use the cars from the end of September to the end of the winter season, at which point he has been transferred.

FURTHER HELP

Under Manitoba's new agreement with the Dominion, men employed on relief works will be paid 40 cents an hour, plus a bonus in cash. A further feature is that the two governments will pay half the cost of materials used in carrying out the work. The last provision is a new one, the Dominion hitherto contributing to the cost of labor only.

It is to be assumed the same concession will be made in the case of the new work, and that Alberta centres will get corresponding help in buying the necessary materials for constructive work. That will be important in two ways.
First, it will lighten the cost of improvement to the local taxpayers. And it will make possible the doing of more work than limited municipal resources would permit.

CIRCUM-NAVIGATION

"Around the world by air" is now a commercial reality. Any man who has the money can make the trip. He can fly to a party private plane or fly in gaps by steamship and railway. He can cross the Atlantic on the Zepplin, fly from Europe to Hong Kong by the well established liner, or fly to Japan by clipper or Honolulu and San Francisco.

Arrival of the Hong Kong Clipper at the airport, on its first scheduled trip, is a new air line around the globe. And by the late summer the globe-trotter may not have to wait for the Zepplin to get across the Atlantic. The new, regular, regular by plane may be in operation by that time.

We have long been taught that "Time is money." Now, money is money. Anyone who has the cash need worry about the time loss of making a trip to the "ends of the earth"
and back again.

GETTING UNDER WAY

The Dominion estimates for the year provide $228,000 for carrying on the construction of the Banff-Buff high-level highway. This is a very important, a sum upwards of $200,000 is to be spent in the development of Jasper Park. This later comes from the clearance indication given that Jasper Park is at long last starting to come into its own. When as much money has been spent as has already been spent in the Banff Park, in the area of the highway, camp, rest houses, and other conveniences and attractions for visitors, the people of Jasper and the country and mountains will begin to know what motor tourist traffic is.

The policy of preserving Jasper as a resort for millionaires and bears has been finally broken. It has been decided to build a road to destroy that tradition. It will take twenty years of spending, at the rate proposed for this year, to make the Banff-Buff highway as accessible as those of the Banff Park.

But the important thing is that the start has been made. With a gravelled highway from Edmonton and the Banff-Buff highway, through Banff, development of the Park itself will be a continuous process, under pressure of an active and growing public demand.

OSHAWA RESUMES

The strike at Oshawa seems to have ended happily for everybody except Mr. Crill and Mr.
Heintz, and perhaps Premier Heintz, though
this is not so certain. Both company and employees demonstrated their relief that the tie-up was ended, and were apparently satisfied with the settlement arrived at. The Premier was a party to the settlement negotiations, it is to be assumed he, too, was in accord.

The dispute was represented to be over the question of whether Canadian employees are entitled to go on strike under direction of foreign leaders, "agitation" by Heintz, and perhaps Premier Heintz, though
this is not so certain. Both company and em-would be busy building highways. There was even a hint there might not be enough of them to fill the country. But for them, no one need worry about that. They would be no scrap, which they would pass along to the storekeepers, and there would pass along to somebody else, and so on indefinitely.

Now we are waiting hopefully to see what luck Hon. Solon Low has at Ottawa. If he succeeded in coaxing that million out of the federal treasury, two million dollars worth of highway can be built, the province putting up the other million. But in cash, not scrip. The money substitute would be given by the board, along with the substitute money. For whatever reason, the stuff just wouldn't and didn't circulate, and the pleasant dream petered out to the vanishing point.

Without, of course, employing all the idle men in the province for even a day—or any considerable fraction of them. They are not not built now with about and wheel-barrow.
Nor will the two millions in cash employ all the idle men, or any great proportion of them, this summer. Nature expects the best.

A good deal has been learned in the past year.
One item is that highway-construction is not in itself a solvent of the unemployment problem. It helps, but can play only one part, and that a minor part. Unemployment will cease if and only when the great majority of the unemployed are absorbed back into the ordinary processes of production and distribution, and the whole the job alone, nor in the major part, whether it use cash or scrip.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH GERMANY

Stimulated towards the close of the year by the beneficial effects of the German-Canadian Payments Agreement, German imports from Canada showed an appreciable increase in 1936 when a comparison is made with the preceding year. Canadian exports to Germany, however, Trade Commissioner in Hamburg, in the Commercial Intelligence Bureau. In 1935 they reached their low point, since the commencement of normal trading relationships following the war, with a total value of only $1,336,000.

During the period under review they rose by 41 per cent to $1,909,000.

During the ten years preceding 1934 Germany had ranked as one of Canada's leading foreign customers, owing principally to the importance of wheat shipments and of substantial quantities of minerals, metals, and other raw materials.

The normal flow of trade first began to be hampered by trade restrictions which were initially applied in 1931. Despite a progressive enlargement of the trade facilities, imports from Germany continued to decline in importance until 1934. It was in the course of that year that the German Government's so-called "New Plan" went into effect. By virtue of this German import controls, the volume

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

A P. Herbert has a new book for those who treasure the English language, and write each word of a friend's name in the life or club it over the head. The British novelist, Parliamentary and humorist is a member of the staff of "Punch," and employs all the arts of genial satire in his cause.

Departmental unions are among the frequent examples of pained English that Mr. Herbert holds up to scorn. Believe it or not, but among the examples of good English—simple, precise and effective—is a page from Captain James Blunt's "Sailing Alone Around the World" in which the simple New England
mariner describes his plight in a storm.

I'd like to hear Herbert on the following example of judicial delivery, delivered by an English judge in charging the jury in a recent murder case.

"Quite plainly, in my view, I cannot find it difficult to believe the poor fellow was not a murderer."

One has the feeling that the judge was trying to say:

"In my opinion, you will be justified in finding this woman is not guilty of manslaughter."

The jury might well lose itself in the maze
of unnecessary qualifications, in puzzling out the riddle.

The Delatman "Conscience" weakness
assumes attitudes of strength" is true of aspect of the human mind. I recall that a London hotel an East Indian prince arriving at English to a bewildered waiter. He was evidently not pleased with an alteration in a pair of pants he ordered the poor fellow—made to have them "restored to their original and pristine beauty."

My story-writing friend, G. H. Gilroy, Montreal, who in his earlier days was manager of a pain oil plantation on the West African coast, gave me a copy of a letter received from a distressed officer, who wished to get his job back. It reads:

"Kind Sir—On opening this epistle you will behold the work of a dejected person, who is now in a dejected state of mind. I gentleman. Who was violently dejected by twinkling by your goodness!"

For Heaven's sake, Sir, consider this catastrophe as falling on your own head, and remind yourself as walking home at the moon's end of five average wives and children, and you will find your pocket filled with non-existent £.s. and not a solitary shilling; pity my horrible state when believed dejected and proceeding with this heart of steel.

"I hope this vision of horror will enrich your dreams this night and good Angel will be found to do the dejected man, as I millstone so that you will awaken, and with such alacrity as may be compatible with your personal safety you will hasten
to your duty."

MOUNT ROYAL HOTEL

DOROTHY DIX Says:

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married more than eight years to a wonderful man, the kindest person I have ever known. My salary is only $20 a week, so we have no easy time making ends meet. Also, we seem hopelessly in debt for a home that we are trying to pay for, but that is not my trouble. I am losing my baby. I have always been crazy for a child, and when I knew that one was coming I was the happiest person in the world. But she only lived four hours. I had my baby and a lung that failed to grow. Looking her has made me so wild with grief that I have nearly lost my mind. If it were not that I fear that I would never see my precious baby again I'd kill myself. I want my baby so badly that I feel that I could go dig her up and breathe life into her. Every day seems so long. I think nothing but my baby and how sweet she would be. How I shall make out. God only knows.

A HEART-BROKEN MOTHER.

Answer—You have my sympathy and you will have that of every woman who reads your pathetic letter. It is a terrible thing for a woman to go down into the valley of the shadow of death for a child and then come back with empty arms, but you are making a bad matter worse by your morbid dwelling on your loss and your self-pity.

In a world full of sorrow there is not one of us but who must tread the same dark path you are walking. Millions of mothers, like you, have wept over little coffins and felt that their hearts were buried in a tiny grave. Millions of wives have agonized over losing the husbands made life that was worth living to them. Millions of us have seen our dear old fathers and mothers slip away from us, and millions of brothers and sisters have mourned those to whom their souls clung as David's did to Jonathan.

Not one of us can escape the bitter tragedy of parting from one we love, and the earth would be so filled with grief and with the lamentations of the bereaved that it would be an intolerable place if we all met our plurihubs with the lack of feeling that you show. For your loss is not unique. It is not even the greatest one that a woman has ever been called upon to suffer.

I have known mothers who have lost little toddlers at their most appealing age. I have known mothers who have lost beautiful daughters just budding into womanhood; mothers who have lost brilliant sons just beginning to realize their ambition. I stood once by a mother when she buried her three children, all of that had in the world, in one grave. None of these women made the outcry that you are making. They were the courage to face their grief and fight it down, instead of giving in to it and to go on with their lives bravely and with an outward cheerfulness for the sake of others.

When I say this to you, don't think I am lacking in sympathy. I am not. But what you need now is not pity, but a brace. You need some one to tell you, as I am doing, that you are being betrayed by your grief. You need to realize that you are being betrayed by your grief. You need to realize that you are being betrayed by your grief. You need to realize that you are being betrayed by your grief.

The best remedy for sorrow is work. Get busy. If you have not enough to do, turn to keep you occupied, find a new hobby. Something that you will have to think about. Something that will take your thoughts off of your child and that will make you so tired that you will sleep at night, instead of lying awake thinking of your loss.

Try to bring some practical sense to bear upon your problem. Get a book from the library called "If I Had Four Apples," and it is in show you how foolish it is for people to ensnare themselves in the idea of having a house when they cannot afford it. And have another baby as soon as you can. If you could afford the one you have lost, you can certainly afford another, and baby hands will beat the wound in your heart.

DOROTHY DIX

What To Do

anxious to do everything just right, and with you would give me detailed information. MISS M. C. J. Answer—If you want to add interest and stimulation to your dinner, do not seat husband, wife or other person who come from the same house next to one another. If it is entirely in order to sit on chairs to everybody, at an informal dinner the places to the right of the host should be definitely kept in mind. The lady guest of honor should be seated at the right of the host and the gentleman guest of honor at the right of the hostess. And don't have two women sitting side by side if you are an even number of men present. My husband and I are planning to entertain some of our business associates at our home, and I am puzzled about the seating. Do husband and wife sit side by side? At a company dinner, who is generally served first? I am particularly anxious to do everything just right, and with you would give me detailed information. MISS M. C. J.

Ideas In Attaining Perfect Complexion

By GLADYS GLAD

A flawless complexion can make even the plainest of women look like a million dollars. Such a complexion, of course, is achieved or preserved only by proper dieting and cleansing methods. But on even the most perfect of skins, an occasional blemish is likely to crop out. Such blemishes, too, have an annoying way of appearing just when a girl has a particularly important date, and they stand out like a sore thumb.

If you are occasionally bothered with skin eruptions in this manner, however, you should find the blemish-concealing preparation now on the market a valuable asset. It is not, by any means, a great point—yet it conceals skin flaws admirably, and it's a handy little gadget to use, too.

To use this action properly, however, you must exercise a little skill. When you apply it, blend the preparation over the blemish with your fingertips, so that it imparts evenness to your skin tones. Then simply pat on your usual fluids of face powder and permit the preparation to dry.

BENEFIT SKIN

This new blemish-concealing preparation is greasy, and will not rub off. It is a handy little gadget to use, too. The manufacturer claims that it is actually beneficial to the skin. Besides, while this new spot-cream is ideal for hiding occasional blemishes, it is not intended to encourage neglect of skin care. To most girls, of course, that implies external treatment, but the skin needs internal treatment as well. Sometimes, while this new spot-cream is ideal for hiding occasional blemishes, it is not intended to encourage neglect of skin care. To most girls, of course, that implies external treatment, but the skin needs internal treatment as well.

A diet rich in fats, sugars and starches puts burden on the digestive system that has a detrimental effect on the skin. Excess fat in the diet increases the secretions of the oil glands. The skin becomes unattractively greasy and oily in aspect, and blemishes and large pores result because of the skin's effort to expel the fatty excess.

Heavy foods, fatty, greasy pastries, sweets, rich gravies, and sauces and fried foods are the type that contribute most to excessive oiliness of the skin, and the girl who is afflicted by an oily, blemished skin should restrain her appetite for these foods. In place of them

SECOND WOMAN OBTAINS DEGREE IN THEOLOGY

TORONTO, April 30.—The second woman to complete the theological course at Wycliffe College, Mrs. R. Goldwin Smith's four years of study were ended today, but the mother of three sons has no desire to enter the ministry. It would be, she says, too "speculative."

Mrs. Smith graduated from Wycliffe last night. She attained first standing in 13 out of 25 final examinations.

When I entered Wycliffe in 1931, they made it quite clear to me that there would be no graduation for me, she said. "But I didn't want to graduate and be ordained. I hadn't decided. I haven't now any desire for ordination. I don't like anything speculative in the realm of religion, and I believe that in the great history of the world."

She should eat fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, leafy salads and bulky foods, she said. "I should eat fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, leafy salads and bulky foods, she said. "I should eat fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, leafy salads and bulky foods, she said."

FINANCIAL TRAGEDY AVERTED BY POLICY

A Flanagan, B.C. woman recently faced what she feared was a financial tragedy. Her husband was killed in an automobile accident, and she was apparently left without funds with which to maintain her children. Her husband had insured with The Mutual Life of Canada in 1923 under Policy No. 172,005, but premiums for the past nine years had not been paid.

Investigation by the Mutual Life agent revealed that the policy was in force, and that the company had a valuable automatic "non-forfeiture" clause. The effect of this clause was to continue the insurance in force, but with a reduction in the amount of the death benefit. The company agreed to pay the balance of the policy, which was $14,000, as a result of the accident.

If interested in obtaining the maximum amount of insurance protection at minimum cost, you are invited to consult the representatives of this "Mutual" company or to write the Head Office direct for information.

First Aid to the Ailing House

THE RIGHT TIME TO PAINT
By Roger B. Whitman

Question—I want to paint my house and have been expecting to do it in the spring. But I am told that paint put on in the spring is likely to peel. Is this so? What time of year is the best time to paint a job?

Answer—The one reason for the peeling of paint is moisture in the wood. Early in the spring there may not have been time for winter damages to have dried out. The time to paint is any time when the wood is thoroughly dry, and the temperature is 50 degrees or over.

SELECTING AN OIL BURNER

Question—I have steam heat and burn oil. The boiler is 15 years old, but in good condition, and gives plenty of heat. I want to put in an oil burner. One company tells me that the boiler is overloaded and wants to sell me a complete new unit, while others say that the boiler is all right. How can I decide?

Answer—If your boiler has been providing sufficient heat with coal, it should certainly do so with an oil burner. This can be settled only by an expert. The important thing is the selecting of an installer who knows his business thoroughly, who is well established and likely to stay in business, and who continues to be interested in his customers after the bills are paid. You can depend on that kind of a man to select a burner that will give good service with your boiler. Inquire among your oil burning friends for opinions of the various local agents and put the matter in the hands of the man on whom you get the best reports.

THIN VARNISH FOR SCREENS

Question—To keep copper window screens from staining white paint, you have advised finishing them with this varnish: a mixture of 1/2 spars varnish and 1/4 each of turpentine and linseed oil. Why couldn't varnish be used by itself? Why should it be thinned?

Answer—Varnish used as it comes would fill up the meshes of the screening. Instead of making the varnish mixture, you can get very good results from the kind of varnish that is naturally thin and its being thinned with a little oil, instead of being brushed. This varnish has the added advantage of being harder and more resistant to weather than ordinary varnish.

BOILED HING

One and one-half cups sugar, 6 teaspoon water, 4 cups water, vanilla or lemon flavoring to taste. Beat egg whites until stiff. Meanwhile, boil sugar and water for 10 minutes. Stir in sugar, and beat harder and more resistant to weather than ordinary varnish.

Say It With Flour This Mother's Day

No cake can be so sentimental or so luxurious for Mother's Day. This is a chocolate cake and all live on the outside—tasted handsomely with boiled icing and decorated with candy forget-me-nots and special messages of affection to the grandest mother in the world.

By Mrs. GAYNOR MADDOX

A flower in the butternut on May 10th, Mother's Day, will be a little more substantial. But a surprise party supper for her is a little more substantial. In this modern era where sons and daughters are said to be equal to any emergency, and mothers are surprisingly helpful for ready to serve luxuries, such as Mother's Day party for her friends by her friends should not be difficult.

Send her out for the afternoon to visit, and when she returns, have the place alive with old friends of hers, not yours, and be ready to serve them all one of the most sumptuous little menus any mother could not be difficult.

Can you imagine mothers surprised delight if you served Frog Legs à la Queen from New Orleans to her and her friends at that surprise party? A modest specialty grocer in the East has just put them in the market. They are to be served with a little bit of heat and serve. They come in a small tin, with a little bit of cream sauce. Try something like this to express your luxurious sentiment. Serve them on hot biscuits and tell her that you and the gang decided there wasn't anything too good for her. Mothers are funny that way—being human, they too, enjoy a bit of extravagance in their behalf.

This handsome and very sentimental Mother's Cake, fragrant with loving care, and that matter, one clever son, a chance to demonstrate in edible form for readers of this column. It offers any loving daughter, or that matter, any clever son, a chance to demonstrate in edible form for readers of this column. It offers any loving daughter, or that matter, any clever son, a chance to demonstrate in edible form for readers of this column.

Continue adding sugar by spoonful, adding lemon juice and sugar, and beat until frosting is stiff enough to hold its shape. Put into a pastry bag or tube and force into the small amount of icing needed for the decoration.

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly
Here's How Come!
Wichita Is Fast
Must Be Good

There are many few sport fans in Canada who don't know that the Edmonton Grads are the world's champions in ladies' basketball, but there is plenty of befuddlement when anyone undertakes to explain how the U.S. challengers for the Underwood trophy are selected. Beyond a vague idea that an effort of some sort is made to pick out the best team, few know the details. With Wichita Thunder scheduled to play the Grads a three-out-of-five games series here starting May 11 for the international title, we decided to go to Coach Perry Page himself and find out exactly how the challengers are chosen. Here is what he has to say:

Back in 1923 when the Grads played their first international game against Cleveland, there was no trophy for competition, nor any set of rules to go by. The series attracted so much attention however, that the Underwood Trophy Company saw a splendid opportunity to the game, and incidentally themselves, a way of donating a trophy for international competition. A committee was appointed to draw up a set of rules to govern it.

As the donors of this trophy were naturally anxious to have it presented for as frequently as possible it was decided that the trophy should be put in a drawings, and that any team winning a permanent prize or placing title would be eligible to challenge.

Unfortunately, basketball in various states and provinces is played by different rules, and it is not possible to have a championship of the world. In order to govern a championship of the world, the A.A.U. of the United States has required each state to develop a championship for the Underwood trophy, to file a challenge with that body. The records of the team is then officially investigated and permission to travel will not be given to inferior teams. In this way, Edmonton fans are protected against what are known as "push-overs" or "phalps."

Plenty of Challengers

THIS sport's basic conditions were accepted from one double that number which were fixed. The Cleveland team had won what is known as the "title" of the world, and the Wichita Grads were just a team that had not played in Edmonton previously nor had any Cleveland team played here for several years. Because of these facts, the challenge of the Cleveland team was promptly accepted.

The challenge of the Wichita and Tulsa teams are based entirely upon the records of the two teams. For the last seven years the Wichita team has been competing in the American national tournament, and time after time has worked its way to the quarter or semi-final, only to be out to such remarkable teams as Durant, Tulsa, El Dorado, etc.

This year they were more than unfortunate, for after winning their way to the semi-finals, and knocking over some of the strongest teams to the tournament they "blew" a five-point lead against the ultimate winners of the tournament in the last three minutes of play. With the score tied when the final whistle blew, Wichita and Little Rock were ordered to go into overtime. The captain of the Wichita team had a glorious chance to win the national title, but fate deceived otherwise—he missed the shot. The game was still tied at the end of the first overtime period, and during the next period the Little Rock girls scored a single basket to win the game.

"Floater" Break Up

WITH a trip to Edmonton depending upon the result, the Wichita girls "blew the works" in the first overtime game, and their powerful opponents—much taller and heavier than the Wichita girls—were just a shade too good for them. However, the Little Rock team (composed almost entirely of what are known as "floaters" or "basketball trampers") promptly disbanded following the tournament, and Wichita was awarded the right to tackle the Grads in the second series. Tulsa, meanwhile, still holds the American title under boys' rules, and their right to challenge has never been questioned.

Southern and middle west basketball critics who have watched these American tournaments for many years rate the Wichita team as the "fastest team in America," and refer to their short-passing game as the best seen at the tournament. This feature of the game should appeal particularly to Edmonton fans as the Grads' game has always been built along the same lines—a quick breaking short-passing style which keeps the game going at top-notch speed.

The series with Wichita will form part of the Coronation program billed for that week.

Preston has three times been in the final, when they won in 1928, the year before when they lost to the Grads, and in 1927 at Stamford Bridge when they lost to Arsenal.
